As part of the 2009 Bee College program, Dr. Bill Kern, UF Associate Professor of Urban Entomology, will offer African honey bee training for pest management professionals on the morning of Saturday, March 21st. The training will cover history, biology, and behavior of both African and European honey bees. Dr. Kern will also discuss safety protocol and techniques for removal of all types of honey bee swarms and colonies. Certified PCOs who attend training will be eligible for inclusion on list of PCOs used by UF/IFAS and FDACS-DPI personnel for honey bee removal recommendations. Lunch and refreshments will be provided.
